Sake is pronounced "sa-keh" not "sa-kee"!

Sake is a Japanese rice wine that is made during a brewing process by fermenting rice, during which the starches are converted into sugar, and then alcohol.

Sake is often enjoyed during appetizers, or dim sum (tapas) style dining. It is sipped while enjoying light appetizers such as sushi. It is not often enjoyed as part of a large meal; although in the west today, sake is often enjoyed similarly to wine that is paired with foods.
